FIGHTER
FIGHTER DESIGN LLC

WWW.FIGHTERD.COM

This past Christmas, Fighter Design staff rescued this wounded Bald Eagle on private property in the remote mountains of Arkansas. State wildlife officials brought the protected animal to rehab, where a .22 rifle projectile was found inside her. State officials are currently investigating the case.

ABOUT US

INNOVATION FOR THE AMERICAN FIGHTER™

Fighter Design™ brings meaningful products to market. Our company was originally founded in 2010 as a think tank for SOF projects. Originally specializing in custom work, Fighter Design™ evolved into a design and manufacturing company. Customers are welcome to learn more about us online at www.FighterD.com

ADAM SLANK, FOUNDER

Company founder Adam Slank was born to be an innovator. Determined from a young age to build "meaningful things that solved problems", he grew up in the aisles of hardware stores, machine shops, and garages while working on projects that might "do this" or "solve that". Ever since the bug caught him, it's been a maniacal obsession with building, design and problem solving.

When he was 20, Adam started working with the military in a roundabout way. After inventing a free-fall parachute system and demonstrating it to the military, a Navy SEAL suggested that he might consider building better equipment for military K-9 teams. After the start of the Iraq war, the use of dogs was booming and the equipment was slow, weak, and outdated. By lucky coincidence, Adam had just bought his first German Shepherd and was interested in working dogs. His first project was a trigger-release dog leash, intended to work like a parachute break-away device via wire. It saw some action in combat and Adam started manufacturing more parachute style dog gear for customer requests. Those products included some brilliant customer inspired designs: a trigger-release dog muzzle, a jump rated collar, quick release leads, and custom harnesses. In 2005, Combat K-9™ was formed.

The war was in full swing in 2005 and the special operations' dog teams had frequent requests for new equipment designs. Slank began to build a reputation as a problem solver, and his shop started to attract more exotic problems. Soon he was prototyping various ideas that team members wanted to see for themselves.

"It was a great time to be an inventor. I was living the dream and I loved my customers. Everywhere I looked, there was room for improvement," said Slank.

Customers began to call his shop the "think tank", since it was a place for early stage ideas. In 2010, Fighter Design™ was founded to expand this discipline of ideation and development.

Slank is now proud to release the new 2014 collection, which includes some of the most exciting new products of the year.

DAMON HELTON, CEO

Damon was born to be a Fighter. He comes from a long line of them. Every male in his family has answered the call and served this great Nation. He enlisted in the US Army in 2001 and volunteered for the Ranger Regiment.

Damon served 5 tours overseas in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom. Damon was Honorably Discharged from the Army in 2005.

Upon returning to civilian life, his interest in business led him to the tactical industry, where he spent 8 years before joining Fighter Design™ in 2013. Damon's experience with the end user convinced him that the industry needed to return to the old fashioned values of quality and customer service.

"I chose to come to Fighter Design because I believe in its mission. We serve a community of patriots who deserve the very best that this industry can give them. It takes guts to take risks and make change happen, and that's what we're doing here - bringing about change."

When Damon became the CEO, he already knew Adam Slank from the industry but he did not fully understand how the company was ran. He soon discovered that it was "pure mad science" in the shop and the company needed an organizational overhaul. Damon's planning and organization dramatically increased productivity within the first 60 days.

"Adam and I are like yin and yang. He is so creative that I get fired up just listening to his ideas. Yet, a balance is needed to make creative visions become reality. Ultimately, we share the same vision and we give each-other balance," said Damon.

Under Damon's direction, Fighter Design™ is growing fast and is recruiting for 2014.

AIRFLOW™ PANTS

AFP / Airflow Pants / MultiCam™, Coyote, OD Green, Black / $174.99

AIRFLOW™ Pants were developed for the heat. The remarkable difference in comfort when compared to "vented" clothing or moisture wicking materials can be attributed to simple aerodynamics. The process is best described by the inventor of AIRFLOW™ technology.

"AIRFLOW™ is a breathing system that uses the natural movement of the body to induce air movement throughout the pants. To compare this technology to vented clothing, consider what happens in a house when just one window is open. There isn't much airflow until another window is opened and all the doors slam shut. The air just needed an open pressure system. It's basically the same way with clothing," said Adam Slank
